

DIVERSITY, EQUITY & INCLUSION POLICY

Our long term and sustainable success depends on our creativity and ability to work together.

This policy is an evolving document that represents Outbrain's continuous dedication to fostering a diverse, equitable, and inclusive workplace. It invites all employees to align with our business objectives and embrace diversity by challenging existing norms, habits, and procedures to ensure inclusivity. We aim to tap into the collective intelligence and leverage the power of diverse perspectives, ultimately driving greater success for our company and making a meaningful impact in society. This document also provides a framework for implementing specific actions.

Outbrain acknowledges that there are inequalities in our society and that some of the existing norms, habits, and procedures are not inclusive to everyone. We acknowledge that these problems are systemic and can't be changed easily or all at once, but organizations like ours can help improve social tendencies to better society. Therefore, at Outbrain, we are committed to never losing sight of these inequalities and will do our part to level the playing field, closing the gap and creating a safe and welcoming environment for everyone.

An infographic with an orange background and a white outline of a person wearing glasses in the top right corner. It contains four bullet points with orange circular markers. At the bottom, it cites the source: "Source: McKinsey & Company 2020 - Diversity wins: How inclusion matters." The text is as follows:

- Inclusive teams make better decisions 87% of the time
- Decisions made by diverse teams deliver 60% better results
- Business with gender balance at the executive level are 21% more likely to outperform competitors
- Companies in the top quartile for racial and ethnic diversity are 35 % more likely to have financial returns above their respective national industry medians.

All Outbrainers and those supporting our activities - whether you're on the board, a team leader, a new hire, a partner, a client, or a vendor - are encouraged to see diversity as a reality and not as a challenge. Different backgrounds and ways of thinking are invaluable to Outbrain's culture, its growth, and its ability to adapt to changing environments. By contrast, a homogenous group of people sharing similar biases and limited perspectives may jeopardize sustainability, creativity, and innovation.

We are committed to rethinking norms, habits, and procedures across the company. Recognizing that actions can have unforeseen consequences, we can accept there will be mistakes along the way. But, we will work to create a safe environment where we aim for progress and are open to learning. This document marks one step of a long but rewarding journey – one we hope you will all join us on, with respect, empathy, and curiosity.

Defining DE&I and Related Terms

Diversity, equity, and inclusion can be defined and spoken about in many different ways. At Outbrain, this is how we interpret them:

Diversity: People are different from one another on multiple dimensions and in different contexts. This can be based on experiences, ethnicity, culture, age, language, gender, sexual orientation, socioeconomic status, abilities, neurodiversity, education, eating/dietary preferences, ways of working, family status, and political views.

Equity: Every individual begins from a unique point and therefore allocating attention, support, resources, and opportunities may be necessary to create a level playing field. Equity acknowledges that some individuals or groups may require additional support or accommodations to overcome systemic disadvantages and achieve true equality.

Equity is different from equality! Equality refers to the idea of treating everyone the same, regardless of their circumstances or needs. In the context of equality, everyone is seen as having the same starting point and is subject to the same rules and regulations. However, this approach does not address the inherent disadvantages or barriers that certain individuals or groups face due to systemic inequalities.

Inclusion: Establishing a company culture and environment that is accessible, welcoming, and navigable to all.

This includes approaches like hybrid work models, fully remote work arrangements, and having global employees situated in geographically diverse locations compared to their core team.

Empathy: The ability to “step into the shoes” of another person, in good faith to understand their feelings and perspectives; then use that knowledge to guide our actions with care and compassion.
